Semester Report
Fall 2008

Office of Judicial Programs
Division of Student Affairs
The University of Georgia
Executive Summary

The data within this report reflect cases with incident dates from August 1, 2008 through December 31, 2008. This report will provide an overview of cases resulting from alleged violations of the University of Georgia (UGA) Code of Conduct. While the majority of cases were managed by the Office of Judicial Programs (OJP), housing judicial data is included.

The Office of Judicial Programs received reports of alleged violations from a variety of University and local sources. The majority of overall cases originated from University Housing. Athens Clarke County Police and University of Georgia Police Department sent OJP a combined 289 cases. University Computer Services made 99 referrals through the conduct process. OJP managed 382 cases as compared to the 240 resolved through the Department of Housing.

The majority of cases were resolved through the informal resolution process. Students elected to resolve cases through formal hearings at a rate of 8% (N=47). University hearing officers resolved 81% (N=464) of the cases. When students accepted responsibility or were found to be responsible through a formal hearing, a variety of educational sanctions were utilized. Probation (N=293) with the University was the most common sanction, followed closely by mandated alcohol education classes (N=271) through the University Health Center or a court-approved facility and reprimands (N=143). The large number of reprimands was due to the number of computer policy violations. During the fall semester, 21 students were suspended from the University.

Freshmen make up the majority of students allegedly violating the Code of Conduct regulations related to alcohol and drugs. An analysis of these alleged violations by classification shows 89% (N=444) of the total number of students was freshmen. Males (N=882) were more likely than females (N=340) to face allegations of violations.

The Office of Judicial Programs notified the parents or guardians of 212 students under the age of 21 that their students were found to have violated Code of Conduct policies on the use or possession of alcohol or other drugs.

Freshmen provided the highest number of alleged repeat violators for the fall of 2008 with 37 of the total 47 students. Male repeat violators made up 79% of the total number when examined by gender.
“Incidents of alleged violations of conduct regulations are reported to the Associate Dean of Students for Judicial Programs, Office of Judicial Programs (130 Memorial Hall) or his/her designee. Individuals or groups filing a report should do so in writing and the report should be submitted as soon as possible after the alleged violation. Reports not submitted in writing will be independently verified prior to beginning a judicial investigation. For individuals filing a report, a meeting can be arranged with a staff member in the Office of Judicial Programs to discuss the judicial process. For incidents to be reported in University Housing, individuals or groups filing a report may contact the Area Office where the incident took place.” The University of Georgia Code of Conduct

The Office of Judicial Programs receives reports of alleged violations of conduct regulations from a variety of sources. Unless suspension or expulsion are possible sanctions, incidents reported by University Housing personnel are often heard by University Housing staff. Athens Clarke County and University Police provide the majority of reports to the Office of Judicial Programs.

“After receiving a report, a staff member will be assigned to investigate the circumstances of the incident and determine what conduct regulations, if any, are alleged to have been violated.” The University of Georgia Code of Conduct

“During the meeting the staff member will determine which, if any, of the alleged charges are to be resolved through the judicial process and advise the student or organization about the options for resolving judicial charges.” The University of Georgia Code of Conduct

Residence Life and Housing
“If the student or organization agrees that the violation(s) of the conduct regulations cited occurred, he/she (it) may decide to have the case resolved through the informal process. A student or organization always has the right to refuse the informal process and proceed with a formal hearing. Final resolution of the informal process must meet the following criteria: (1) the staff member handling the case and the student or student organization agree that informal resolution is a reasonable option given the circumstances; (2) the student or organization must accept responsibility for the violation(s) of the specified conduct regulation(s); (3) the student or organization must agree with the sanctions resulting from the violation(s); (4) if applicable, the victim should agree with the sanctions issued for the violation(s) and may propose sanctions that are reasonable and in accordance with the Code of Conduct. Cases that do not meet all four criteria for the informal resolution will be referred to formal resolution (hearing).” The University of Georgia Code of Conduct

“If the student or organization disputes the investigative finding that a violation of the conduct regulations has taken place, rejects the informal resolution, or does not agree with the sanctions resulting from the informal resolution, the case shall be resolved through the formal resolution procedures . . .” The University of Georgia Code of Conduct

The data in these tables reflect student classification based on incident date and reflects Office of Judicial Programs and University Housing numbers for violations of the Code of Conduct. Many students were responsible for multiple violations; therefore, there is a difference between the number of violations and the actual number of students. Data demonstrates a much higher number of overall violations and actual students for freshmen at the University. While the data displays no violations for graduate and professional students, Judicial Action recognizes first year graduate students as freshmen, second year law students as sophomores, etc.
